Dawson Making Preparations To Give Royal Entertainment to South Georgia Conference

Keen Interest Is Being Felt Among the Pastors in the Number of Changes Expected.

BISHOP CANDLER PRESIDES THIS TIME

Four Hundred Members Expected to Attend the Conference, Which Will Convene on November 25.

Dawson, Ga., November 21--(Special.)--All Dawson stands ready to receive and entertain the nearly 400 members of the South Georgia conference, which meets in the First Methodist church of this city. November 25. Homes of every denomination have thrown open their doors for the entertainment of the visiting Methodist and assurance is given that a most cordial greeting will be given them.

Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, will preside at this session of the conference and will make the appointments of the preachers for another year's work. Assisting Bishop Candler in making the appointments will be a cabinet of ten presiding elders, who are subordinate to him in the management of the church affairs in the bounds of this conference. The ministers making up the cabinet are Dr. T. D. Ellis, of the Columbus district; Rev. J. B. Johnson, of the Savannah district; Rev. P. McFerrin, of the Macon district; Rev. J. P. Wardlaw, of the Columbus district; Rev. John M. Outler, of the Thomasville district; Rev. W. H. Dunn, of the Valdosta district; Rev. L. T. Tyson, of the Waycross district; Rev. H. Hill, of the Milledgeville district; and Rev. Isaacson Anthony, of the Dublin district.

As the date for the annual session of the conference approaches no little interest is taken in the appointments of the preachers for another year. Little later in the policy of the Methodist church, every preacher is admitted into the conference with the understanding that he is willing to go wherever he may be sent; and in addition to that stipulation it is a matter of Methodist tradition that no preacher is allowed to know what his appointment will be until it is read out the last thing before final adjournment. This uncertainty and mystery creates no little speculation among the ministers as to where they may be sent for another season and who will be the recipients of the best charges in the conference.

Much Uncertainty.

This uncertainty and mystery is increased more than usual this year, owing to the fact that fourteen of the conference conference men will be forced to move, according to the four-year limit of service in Methodist law. Hence fourteen men must move, an equal number must be transferred to make room for them. There are twenty-eight men who are moved, it will meet twice that number. It is believed, this conference will witness the removal of a large number of ministers from one charge to another.

Among the preachers to be moved this year are two presiding elders--Dr. J. P. McFerrin, of the Columbus district, and the Rev. John M. Outler, of the Thomasville district. These two men have been in charge of their districts for four years. During this time their districts have made considerable advances along every line of church enterprise. Financial contributions have greatly increased, churches have been built, Sunday school progress has been notable, missionary activity has been stimulated, and a more wholesome social condition among the churches prevails. Just who will be assigned to take their places, and where they will be assigned for further work, no man can say.

The pastors of the conference who have served their four-year limit, and who will be moved are: Rev. J. B. Johnson, of the Savannah district; Rev. P. McFerrin, of the Macon district; Rev. J. P. Wardlaw, of the Columbus district; Rev. John M. Outler, of the Thomasville district; Rev. W. H. Dunn, of the Valdosta district; Rev. L. T. Tyson, of the Waycross district; Rev. H. Hill, of the Milledgeville district; and Rev. Isaacson Anthony, of the Dublin district.

Large Conference.

The South Georgia conference is one of the largest conferences in southern Methodist churches. It has nearly 400 members, and its churches have a value of $2,074,255 in the last year. Its personal value is $147,101; 200 local preachers, 9,612 members, 156 Sunday schools, with 3,412 scholars. Last year the conference raised the total sum of money for church purposes of $619,190. Of this sum the presiding elders received $15, while the pastors received $20,000. Foreign missionary contributions amounted to $12,745. The church extension fund received $12,745. The women's missionary fund received $12,745. The total sum of money for church purposes of $619,190. Of this sum the presiding elders received $15, while the pastors received $20,000. Foreign missionary contributions amounted to $12,745. The church extension fund received $12,745. The women's missionary fund received $12,745.

To Aid Red Cross.

For a young man desiring to become a Methodist minister and to receive employment in the conference it is necessary for him to undergo a course of examinations and pursue a course of study lasting through five church years. Before he approaches the conference he must secure a recommendation from his pastor, and a recommendation from the conference is given only when he has been examined by the conference. The annual conference is the first year examined by two committees, one that gives attention to educational qualifications, while the other looks into his age, family, health, gifts and piety. Should he meet the approval of the two committees he is admitted on trial for one year and given work and a course of studies to prepare for another examination the following year. This he continues on for four full years.

In the south Georgia conference the Hocker-Foster.

The marriage of Miss Pauline Hocker to Mr. William O. Foster, of Atlanta, Ga., was solemnized Wednesday morning at 11:30 o'clock, at the First Christian church, in the presence of many friends. Rev. D. S. Walker, the officiating minister, performed the ceremony in a most appropriate and impressive manner. The decorations were very beautiful, and the bride and groom were very happy.

The bride, Miss Pauline Hocker, was given away by her father, Mr. William O. Foster. She wore a beautiful white gown with a long train and a large veil. The groom, Mr. William O. Foster, wore a dark suit and a white shirt with a bow tie. The ceremony was held in the First Christian church, and the wedding party consisted of the bride, groom, best man, maid of honor, and bridesmaids.

Russian Drama.

Mrs. Emma Garrett Boyd's series of lecture-readings on the Russian drama, will be continued tomorrow at 2 in the lecture room of Carnegie library. Mrs. Boyd will speak on realism and idealism in Russian literature, and will read one of the most beautiful and poetic plays in Russian literature, "The Storm," by Ostrovsky. This play, besides being an almost perfect drama, is peculiarly interesting as showing the life of an old-time Russian household and as reflecting many of the Russian national traits.

SALE STARTS MONDAY MORNING AT NINE O'CLOCK

See Our Window Displays

Every year we have a quantity of articles which are discontinued from our catalogue. We also accumulate quite a few pieces which do not sell readily; in fact, some of them may be just a little bit out of date.

However, all of these goods are good, useful, and will make sensible Christmas Gifts. This year we haven't the downstairs Novelty Room, which we had in our Art Store. This special sale will serve a double purpose. We want to get rid of the goods, for the reason that we haven't room. We also want to encourage the practice of early shopping for the holidays.

In the 25c articles there will be found Sterling Silver and gold-filled Handy Pins, in assorted styles, that are worth up to $1.50. We have just hundreds of Handy Pins in silver and gold-filled, which will be sold in pairs and sets of three. There will be covered Collapsible Cups, Pierced Sheffield Bon Bon Dishes, Sterling Silver handled Letter Openers, Nail Files, Shoe Hooks, Shoe Horns, Tooth Brushes, etc.

The list is entirely too large to list in one ad. The values in this 25c sale range as high as $3.00.

In the 50c list there will be found any number of Pins, Brooches, Scarf Pins, Tie Clasp and other Jewelry.

Genuine Tortoise Shell Tango Hair Pins, worth up to $2.00, will be included. Many Sterling Silver novelties, such as Hair Pin Holders, Match Safes, Pin Cushions, Talcum Jars, Stocking Darners, will be included in this lot.

You can get Sterling Silver-backed Books of Tennyson and Longfellow for 50c. Bon Bon Dishes and Baskets in pierced Sheffield, etc.

MISS JUANITA PIERCE.

Of Parrott, Ga., who has been entertained at a number of affairs during a visit the past two weeks with Miss Madge Pollock. She is now attending house parties in north Georgia.

McDonald-Guinn.

A beautiful wedding solemnized at the First Christian church on Wednesday evening was that of Miss Ruby McDonald and Mr. Richard Dudley Guinn.

The church was decorated with palms, and music rendered by the organist, Miss Adelle Stevens. The bridesmaids, Messrs. D. Bennett and Lee Lloyd Williams, came down the center aisle and were joined by Rev. L. O. Bricker, who officiated the union, with her mother of honor, Mrs. Clifford L. Knott, and the groom, with his best man, Mr. Thomas Duval Pollock, completed the wedding party.

Miss McDonald wore white satin on train with lace tulle and pearl trimmings, the long veil and orange shoes, some enhancing her plump beauty. She carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilacs. Mrs. Kinney, who was a bridesmaid, wore yellow satin with chiffon and lace over-drapery and carried yellow roses.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride party repaired to the home of Mrs. Ella D. Guinn, the mother of the groom, where a delightful reception was held. The attractive house was decorated with rare plants and yellow chrysanthemums. Punch was served by Miss Isabel Guinn. Later Miss Adelaide Clayton, assisted by Miss Mary Guinn, passed delicious refreshments.

Music throughout the evening added its brightness.

Julia Jackson Chapter.

In spite of the extremely cold weather the Julia Jackson chapter, Children of the Constitution, held a very successful meeting Friday at Miss Hanna's school, 245 Peachtree street. Miss Marie Duval, Miss Marie Duval and Miss Jennie Duval, O'Neal, recited, perfectly the verses in order of their session from the union, naming dates, and were each one awarded a box of Winnie Davis candies. Miss Hanna announced that at the next meeting she hoped every member of the chapter would be able to assign three principal causes for the war between the states. Cards will be given to the successful contestants and a medal will be awarded to the most diligent member of the chapter at the closing meeting in May, 1915.

Mrs. Thomas Peters gave a most interesting talk, and Mrs. L. W. McLaughlin sang the "Homeless Blue Flag." The children joining in the chorus. A pleasant feature of the occasion was the musical numbers by the children's orchestra of the Griffin School of Music.

Refreshments were served, and the chapter was dismissed, to hold their next meeting the third Friday in December.

Terpsichorean Club.

The Terpsichorean club announces that all further dances given by them this winter will be held at the Danes club, formerly the old Fourth house, 445 Peachtree.

For all affairs given by the club there will be special decorations, which will add much to the already beautifully arranged Danes club.

Mrs. Gayle Forchuck, will be hostess and has arranged so that each affair will have some special feature of entertainment and the members of the club are looking forward to an especially enjoyable winter in their new quarters.

After Several Seasons' Respite, the Big Demand This Year Is For

Plush and Corduroy Coats

Materials in Themselves Becoming to Most Every Woman

We have a splendid assortment of these in the imported German plushes (now practically out of the market) and all the better domestic plushes—materials which will stand the test of sunlight without "grinning" (showing the back), which have a rich, thick pile and a deep, jet black color, closely resembling sealskin. And our corduroys are principally with the wide wale—soft and velvety to the touch.

These materials are beautifully made up in the most attractive models—some have fur collars, some are fur trimmed, others are plain—there are medium and long models with the correct flare. Coats with belts of all sorts and without belts; coats lined in lustrous satins and peau de cygne, both fancy and plain—all rich, beautiful garments, especially becoming because of the style of the cut and the brilliancy of the materials.

Some Very Special Values Are Shown in:

UNIQUE CYLINDER BLOCK ON THE CADILLAC "EIGHT"

The design of the cylinder block castings of the new Cadillac Eight is unique among motor cars by reason of the fact that removable water jacket plates are fitted at each end of the block.

Thus an entirely new scheme for the casting of cylinders en bloc has been put into operation in the Cadillac foundries. The usual practice provides no opening into the water circulation space above the cylinder.

The new Cadillac practice affords several advantages. One of these is that it permits the cores to be applied before the casting is made, which prevents slipping of the cores and insures uniform thickness of the cylinder walls and uniform space for Another is that, through the operation of the water space, inspection can be made to be sure that webs of metal are not formed on the cooling plates with the free circulation of the cooling water—for such interference is likely to have serious results.

A third advantage is that the use of the water space can detach the plates and remove any sediment that may have been deposited by the water used in the cooling system. The removable plates are simply lifted to permit close inspection of the water space.

THANKSGIVING BASKETS SHOWN AT J. M. HIGH CO.

Window Display of Tempting Delicacies and Fruits Attracting Large Crowds.

A big window teeming with the most tempting of delicacies and luscious fruits has been one of the attractive spots on Whitehall street since Saturday morning.

Hundreds of passers-by, attracted by the display, hasten away with a very noticeable tendency toward a "watering of the mouth."

The display is that of the J. M. High company, the window being one of the showiest, just below the corner of Hunter street.

The High company has inaugurated an innovation, too, in this display, which is bound to hit a popular chord with Atlanta buyers. Chief among the exquisite things shown is the dainty, yet bountiful—Thanksgiving baskets, packed by the big New York caterers, Park & Tilford. The baskets themselves are woven of beautiful wire mesh, and are of various sizes, artistically packed in each basket is an abundance of delicacies and fruits—all interwoven and displayed in such a manner as to make the contents not only tempting to the appetite, but a "thing of beauty" to the eye.

Judging from the many inquiries and the sales already listed, there can be no doubt of the popularity of these baskets. In addition to the baskets, the display is filled with tempting delicacies, such as cranberries, apples, oranges, and other fruits, which, as noted, are placed in a "watering" if you linger near them too long.

WAYCROSS HELPING WAR SUFFERERS

Waycross, Ga., November 21.—(Special.)—All the old men that can be gathered in Waycross will be sent to the war zone in Europe for use as bandages. The work of collecting the men is in charge of the local post of the Salvation army, and the appeal for donations is meeting with ready response. Waycross people have already sent many men to the front, and are expected to send more during the winter.

tonque coated; your insides filled with bile and indigestible waste, remember the moment Pape's Diapiesin comes in contact with the stomach all distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost miraculous, and the joy is its own reward.

A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin will give you a hundred dollars' worth of satisfaction, or your druggist hands you your money back.

It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of a sick, sour, upset stomach during day or at night. It's the quietest, surest and most harmless stomach doctor in the world.

Chattanooga Presbyterians Give $10,000 to Help Build New Oglethorpe University

Despite the so-called depression throughout the south, a check for $10,000 was received Saturday from J. T. Lupton, of Chattanooga, for the fund raised for the construction of the first building of Oglethorpe university.

The check was received by Dr. Thorneill Jacobs, executive representative, and will immediately go into the construction of the first building, on which work has already begun.

The building will have reached a height sufficient for the laying of the cornerstone on January 21, 1915.

Dr. Jacobs said Saturday that he was gratified over the progress being made toward the completion of the building and members of the executive committee are elated over the interest being taken by people all over the south in the new institution.

The check received from Mr. Lupton represents the fund raised by Presbyterians of Chattanooga, and almost doubles the best record made. Discussing the interest shown by the people of Chattanooga in the new university, Dr. Jacobs said:

"I had the pleasure of telling the Oglethorpe story on two successive Sundays to the First and Central Presbyterian churches of Chattanooga. Their liberality in the matter of Oglethorpe university has never been equaled and I doubt if it has ever been equaled in the history of educational institutions in the south. In addition to the big-hearted generosity of Mr. Lupton, there were approximately three dozen other subscriptions in amounts varying from $50 to $250. The Presbyterians of Chattanooga have heard how Augusta had given $6,000 and Nashville, Tenn., $5,000, and Houston, Texas, $4,000. Columbia, Ga., $4,000, honored themselves and their church by almost doubling the best record set yet made. When it is remembered that this was done during 'war times,' and that the great mass of it is cash now in the bank, the fine spirit of it will be the more emphasized."

"I am one of those who believe that the good hand of God is upon Oglethorpe and that is why the splendor of her destiny is certain. Have you ever heard our motto, three simple Latin words, 'Memento Del Recurrenti'—By the Hand of God she Has Risen From the Dead."

"While this magnificent record of the Presbyterians of Chattanooga, made possible by the superb generosity of one of their number, is especially gratifying, nevertheless some other very remarkable records are being made all over the south for Oglethorpe."

"For example, I recently addressed congregations in Monroe, N. C.; Danville, Ky.; Crowley, La.; Fayetteville, Tenn.; and Granada, N. M. All of these since the war of the eastern hemisphere began. The sum total of their gifts approaches $25,000."

With actual construction of the first building under way and preparations of the cornerstone exercises completed, Dr. Jacobs is bending every effort to meet the obligation to open the institution with the freshman class in the fall of 1915.

MAJ. FRANK M'GEE DIES FROM BURNS AT WAYCROSS HOME

Waycross, Ga., November 21.—(Special.)—After lingering since Wednesday morning from burns received when his clothes caught fire as he was building a fire in a heater and from a stroke of paralysis following, Major Frank M'Gee, prominent citizen of Waycross, died today without regaining consciousness. He was 56 years old and was survived by three daughters, Mrs. McGregor Mayo, Mrs. George Mayo and Miss Maud M'Gee, all of Waycross.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at the home. The body is being moved to Waycross Monday morning to be buried in the local cemetery.

HANDLEY BROTHERS, Your Mother and Sister Are Looking for You.

Waycross, Ga., November 21.—(Special.)—Relative of three young men, from whom no word has been received for three months, today asked Handley Brothers to aid them in locating their kin. It is feared the men are in trouble and unable to communicate with their mother and father, who live here. The missing men are R. D. Handley and R. J. Handley, last heard from in Florida, and A. W. Handley, whose last letter was from a point in South Carolina. He is reported to be in communication with them have failed and the relatives here have appealed to the newspapers as a last resort. The sister of the missing men, Miss Janie Handley, 24 Allen street, is conducting a search and will appreciate any information concerning her brothers.

The Thanksgiving Dinner

JUST THE color of the grape juice in which they are drinking to the royal bird is the charmeuse gown on the extreme right. Its long bodice, draped fichu fashion and tied in the back in a butterfly bow, has black velvet collar and revers and its chiffon sleeves falling full from their drooping arm holes are tied with black velvet ribbon. The velvet again shows in the draped underskirt over which the full tunic corded at the bottom falls in the new line, shorter in back than in front.

The little green taffeta frock is a very attractive and girlish model. The waist is of black velvet, hooking like a little jacket over its three tier accordion pleated skirt. It has two points at each side and fastens at the back with three big rhinestone buttons. A few folds of white tulle outline the V-shaped neck and green chiffon has been used for the sleeves while a green taffeta sash has been loosely knotted around the hips.

For a little girl to wear at the festival dinner, nothing could be prettier than the little smocked dress of corn-colored challis. Its very simplicity is its charm for the only trimming is the smocking used for yoke and cuffs and the sheer white linen embroidered in yellow collar and wrist ruffles.

Black satin is always suitable for the very elderly woman and in this case, its severity has been relieved by the fine lace collar and ruffles which match the quaint, little, old lady's cap.

AUGUSTA'S SOCIAL SIDE

Augusta, Ga., November 21.—(Special Correspondence.)—Mr. Hugh Hall Alexander has been called to the marriage of his daughter, Miss Louise Porter, to Mr. Theodore H. Anderson, of Aiken, S. C., Thursday morning, December 3, at 11:30 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church.

Miss Ruth C. Radford was married

A Smooth, White Skin
That Defies Weather

During the coming months of biting wind and intense cold, you who would keep your skin smooth, white and velvet, should turn your attention to mercurochrome. Nothing else will so effectively remove chapped, roughened or discolored surface. By gradually absorbing the weather-beaten cuticle, the complexion is kept in perfect condition, and even the beauty of expression appears more pronounced. If your skin be blotchy, spotty, freckled, coarse, sallow or over-tanned, why not about it? One ounce of ordinary mercurochrome, be it had at any drugstore, will completely transform the most unsightly complexion in less than a fortnight. Use the way, lightly, the cold cream, washing it off morning.

If weather, age or poor health has marred your face with wrinkles, here's good news. You can quickly remove every line prepared by disolving it. The firm, smoother skin, clear, more youthful appearance, and the application, will astonish you.—(adv.)

Wednesday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Radford, the wedding of Miss Ruth C. Radford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Radford, and Mr. Theodore H. Anderson, of Aiken, S. C., was celebrated. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The bride was attended by her mother, and the groom by his father. The wedding party consisted of the bride, groom, bridesmaids, and best man. The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The wedding was a most successful and enjoyable affair.

The Doll Store Is Ready for the Children!!

War or no war, little ones must have Dollies at Christmas time. Of course! It wouldn't be a really, truly Christmas without them; for every wee girlie secretly cherishes the longing for a doll in her stocking, whatever else old Santa Claus may leave there.

And despite the predictions of a few "sober sides" that there would be no dolls this year, we have hundreds of beautiful ones—the most delightful kinds, to make happy as many childish hearts.

Bring the children—Monday. Let them see the entire display. The character dolls will please them greatly. They are priced variously from $1 to .35.

Cunning "Baby Dolls," ready dressed, 50c to $1.50.

Novelty Musical Dolls—entirely new—at $1.00 and $1.25.

Sleeping Dolls that look like real babies—soft, fine, short hair—for as little as 50c—and up to $5.00.

Dr. J. W. Murray was host at a most enjoyable postman supper Friday evening. Covers were laid for ten.

An old-fashioned candy-pulling at the home of Miss Beary Steele was a delightful happening of Monday evening. Miss Addie Marsh Bost, who is spending a few days at home from her college, was the guest of honor.

A second recital by the music and expression club at the academy given Friday evening at the auditorium.

THE TROY OF HEARTS

ALAN ROSE AND JIMMY MARROPHAT

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT.

The photo drama corresponding to this installment of "The Troy of Hearts" may be seen at the Savoy and Alhambra theaters tomorrow. By this unique arrangement with the Universal Film Mfg. Co. it is, therefore, not only possible to read "The Troy of Hearts" in this paper, but also to see each installment of it at the moving picture theaters.

THE FIRST LAW

STORY.—The hand of fate is the "death-sig" employed by Seneca Trine in the private war of vengeance which he waged against Alan Rose, son of the man (now dead) who was once his enemy. Alan Rose and is loved by Trine's daughter, Judith. The mountain people are a lawless, violent and unscrupulous people, promise her father to marry her, but she is not to be married until she has saved her life and her father's. Judith refuses to save out the man she made her father. She is the only one who has saved her father. Alan and Rose and his friend Tom Barcus to escape the persecution of Trine and his allies led by his confidential man, Marrophet.

I.—THE LAST WARNING.

In the chill, violet-shadowed dusk of that clear evening, a chap-fallen motor car crept slowly into the little mountain town of Mesquite at the heels of two muffled mules, driven by a chauffeur who steered with one hand while the other furnished the crackling whip-lash over the backs of its sole motive power.

Its one passenger, a cripple as helpless as the car itself, huddled in a corner of the motor, saluted Mesquite with a sneer. Though he was in sore need of such rude comforts as the town stood prepared to afford him, his demeanor toward it was that of one who suffers an indignity rather than begs accommodation.

And now, as the car crawled to a pause before the Mountain house—Mesquite's one caravanserai—and Mesquite itself, to the last sea-bitten bound, gathered round to view this wonder, Mr. Trine's indignation and chagrin distilled words of poisonous import.

Far from resenting this, Mesquite, pipe in mouth, hands in pockets, admired and applauded, and rather resented the change of front when two other strangers (whose earlier appearance in town had helped make that one day memorable beyond all others in Mesquite's history) chartered the Mountain house and interrupted the elder devil with cries of greeting and jubilation.

The leader of these answers to the name of Marrophet; his companion was a person named Jimmy. One guarded word from Marrophet was all that was required to change the old man's

What passed between the trio after they disappeared behind that debauched door Mesquite could by no means guess. But that a celebration of some sort was in progress was evidenced by the frequency with which Marrophet and Jimmy called on the bar for more liquid refreshment as well as by bursts of laughter and loud and somehow strangely civil of account.

And toward midnight one belated Mesquite pressed in the street outside the Mountain house for one last curious stare at the lighted windows of Mr. Trine's quarters, and so witnessed an incident which puzzled him by fits and starts throughout the balance of his days.

He saw, clearly silhouetted against the glowing oblong of the window, the Mephistophelian profile of Seneca Trine, distorted with a grimace of the cruellest joy that ever heart of man conceived. He saw Marrophet approach his master with a drunken swagger and a swagger which, though intelligible to the unseen auditor, unquestionably afforded both of the other men ample excuse for ecstatic glee. Toward its conclusion Mr. Marrophet apparently capped the peak of jubilation by fumbling in his coat pocket and bringing forth something which strongly resembled a single playing card.

Now when he had contrived to master his mirth, the cripple made a gesture which eloquently abolished this card, a gesture which said quite plainly: "All that is finished. The thing has served its purpose. To hell with it!"

Whereupon, with a smart jerk of his wrist, Mr. Marrophet sent the card sailing into the air, through the open window to lose itself in the night.

The watcher didn't see it fall, and though he spent an uncomfortable hour searching for it in the deep dust of the roadway, he won't say in the end with curiosity unsated: Fate had reserved that card for a higher purpose.

Undisturbed, it lay where it had fallen, face upward, not a dozen feet from the front door of the Mountain house, until another day dawned on Mesquite.

Then, in the clear light of that dawn, four more strangers straggled into town—two weary and bagged men, two footsore and bedraggled women. One of these last was dressed in a suit of man's clothing, much the worse for wear. The other members of the party one and all wore the look of people who have escaped the jaws of death by the narrowest of margins.

At sight of the Mountain house the party betrayed slight symptoms of a more cheerful spirit: rejoicing in its promise of food and drinks and beds within wherein to sleep, the four quickened their steps.

But of a sudden one of the women—she who wore the garments of her sex—suddenly uttered a low cry, a shrill with terror and clutching the arm of the man nearest her, pointed down to the card that stared up from the dust at her feet.

It was a Troy of Hearts.

II.—FULL FLIGHT.

"Oh, what can it mean?" Rose whispered brokenly, clinging to her lover's arm. "Surely you don't think . . . Surely it must be accidental . . . Surely it can't mean—"

"I'm afraid it does," Alan Law responded gravely, ereing the front of the Mountain house. "Our luck holds consistently—that's all. It wouldn't be us if we didn't pick out the one place where Marrophet and Jimmy choose to stop over night. Fortunately, it's early: I doubt they're up. With half a show we ought to be able to find some way of putting a good distance between us and this town before they waken . . . Tom!"

But Mr. Barcus was already at his elbow, in thorough sympathy with Alan's interpretation of the significance to be attached to the card that trembled in Rose's hand.

"Barry's the word!" he agreed. "And there's a motor car over there, in front of the blacksmith's. Probably we can hire her—"

"Trine's car!" Alan ejaculated, swinging round and recognizing the automobile at a glance. "Then he's here, as well!"

"Looks like it," Barcus admitted. "But so much the better. We'll just naturally take the darn' thing off his hands, and I'll bet a dollar there isn't another car within a radius of fifty miles!"

But his confidence was demonstrated to be premature by the discovery, which rewarded the first cursory examination, that the car was very thoroughly out of commission.

Two minutes later, however, their earnest inquiries elicited the fact that, although Barcus was justified in his surmise that the neighboring country was poverty-stricken in respect of motor cars, Mesquite itself boasted two motorcycles whose owners were not indifferent to a chance to sell them second-hand at a considerable advance on the retail list price of the machines, when new.

And that it was that within ten minutes from Rose's discovery of that chance-fung warning in the dust, the party was again in rapid motion.

His hearty sleep disturbed by the departure of the machine bearing Barcus and Judith, Seneca Trine roused on an elbow and looked out of the window just in time to see the second motorcycle gallop off with momentum, Alan steering, Rose in the seat behind.

Sixty seconds later a flaming banner of dust was all that remained to remind Mesquite that Romance had passed that way—that, and a series of passionate screams emanating from the bedroom.

pen to hinder the pursuit—never knowing whether the latter lost or gained.

And thus catastrophe befell . . .

Round the swelling bosom of a wooded mountain-side the motorcycle swept like a hunted hare, and without the least warning came upon Barcus and Judith, dismounted, Barcus bending over his cycle and dithering with his motor.

For one horri-fying instant collision seemed unavoidable.

And it was impossible to stop the cycle—so brief was all his warning. In desperation Alan chose the outside of the road; and for the space of a single heartbeat thought that he might possibly make it, but with the next realized that he would not—seeing the front wheel swing off over the lip of the slope.

At this he acted sharply and upon sheer instinct. As the cycle fell the road altogether he risked a broken knee by releasing his grasp of the handlebars and straightening out his leg and driving it down forcibly against the roadbed. The effect of this was to lift him bodily from the saddle: the machine shot from beneath him like some strange projectile hurled from the bow of a great gun; and Rose crashed against him in the same fraction of a second.

Heading they plunged as one down the hillside, struck its shelving surface a good twenty feet from the brink of the road and flying apart, tumbled their separate ways down the remainder of the drop and into the friendly shelter of the underbrush.

Something nearly miraculous saved them whole. Beyond a few scratches and bruises and a severe shaking, they escaped unharmed. And they were pleased to find themselves up and regaining their breath and recollecting their scattered wits when, with impetus no less terrific than their own had been, the pursuing motor car swung round the bend and hurled itself directly at the two who remained upon the road above.

III.—SACRIFICE.

But Tom Barcus hadn't failed to profit by the warning implicit in Alan's accident.

He was therefore on the alert, quick to see the racing automobile when it came hurtling round the bend, and in the very nick of time grasped Judith's arm and swung her bodily with him back out of harm's way, amid the trees that bordered the inside of the road.

Of necessity his motorcycle suffered. Abandoned in the middle of the road, it was struck by the buffers of the motor car and fung aside as if it had been nothing more ponderable than a mass of straw—landing half-way down the embankment, a hopeless tangle of shattered tubing and twisted wire.

At first blush the circumstance seemed surprising, that the car did not stop. But then Barcus reminded himself that Marrophet and Jimmy could not possibly have witnessed the accident involving Alan and Rose, who, together with the wreck of their machine, remained well-cloaked by the underbrush at the bottom of the canyon. In all probability, then, the assassins had assumed that Alan had hurried on; and since their own first business was concerned exclusively with them, they had done likewise.

As for Rose and Alan—beaten alone knew what had happened to them. So Barcus set himself to find out whatever Providence knew without more delay.

To find them not only alive but practically unscathed affected that loyal soul almost to tears.

But when congratulations had been actually exchanged, there fell an awkward pause. The area of the four sought one another's ruefully, each pair quick with the unuttered but inexorable inquiry: "What next?"

In the outcome, it was Mr. Barcus who advanced the suggestion which was adopted—though this was its reception more through lack of a better than for any actual appeal intrinsic in the proposition.

"When we broke down, up there," he ventured, with a backward jerk of his thumb to indicate the road, "I saw a canyon branching off from this one about a quarter of a mile over yonder. If it's all the same to you people, we might stroll round that way and see what its natural attractions may be—if any. But it's sure a mighty poor sort of a canyon that doesn't lead anywhere."

"Sufficient!" Mr. Law interrupted with a bleak smile.

Crooking a deferential arm, Barcus offered it to Judith.

"Everything is lovely in the formal garden," he insisted—"so sweetly romantic. Are you game for an idle stroller, just to while the idle hours away?" The woman found spirit enough for a wan smile as she tucked her hand gratefully beneath his arm.

"You're the cheerfulness I ever met," she said demurely. "What I'm going to do without you when—if ever—we get out of this awful business, goodness only knows."

"Let's talk of something else," he suggested heartily.

"Unless, of course," she pursued with unbroken gravity, "I marry you . . ."

"Heaven, the young man prayed fervently, 'for-fend!'"

"That is hardly gallant—"

"I mean—beaten for what you should throw yourself away!"

"Humph!" she mused. "Perhaps you're right." Their banter was not without a subtle object, namely to reassure the girl who followed, supported by her lover's arm.

In the course of the last twenty-four hours Rose's jealousy of her sister's new-found friendliness with Alan had become acutely evident. The least courtly assurance of Alan's had been seized upon as a proof of his intimacy with her and again demanded the easiest climbing, when Alan stole back to Judith and reported that, on the evidence of observation and belief, he was convinced that the pursuit had turned back—perhaps for want of ammunition, perhaps to execute some less hazardous attempt upon the lives of the fugitives.

Without delay, then, he made the free end of the rope fast round his own waist and, following the way Barcus had chosen, began the ascent.

Two-thirds of the climb had been accomplished, and Rose and Barcus had arrived in safety at the top, before the temptation to look down proved irresistible.

Alan shuddered and swallowed hard before resuming the ascent.

Another twenty feet, however, brought him to a ledge quite six feet wide, offering a broad and easy path to the summit. He gained this with a prayer of heartfelt relief and was on the point of rising to his feet when a cry of horror from Barcus and a scream of terror from Rose, watching over the upper edge, warned him barely in time to enable him to snatch at and grasp a knob of rock before Judith's weight suddenly tumbled the rope between them and jerked Alan's legs from under him.

His feet and legs kicking the empty air beyond the lip of the ledge, he lay face downward, clutching desperately the knob of rock, praying that it might not slip from his grasp.

The fall of twenty feet to the shale roof was nothing. What would follow would, however, spell death. The impact of her body would set the shale in motion, like an aviator's chute beyond the save was only emptiness and the bowlder-strewn bed of the chasm, a hundred feet below!

The sweat poured from his face like rain. His eyes started in their sockets. The blood drummed in his ears with a roar resembling distant thunder. His fingers grew numb, his throat dry . . .

He felt that he could not hold on another instant when, abruptly, that torture was no more. The rope had been relieved of its burden. He heard a scream from below echoed by one from above, then the thump of Judith's body falling on the shale, then the alighting rumble of the landslide gathering momentum as it poured down the cliff.

Barcus, at length arising, assisted him to a place of security. Spent and faint and sick with horror, he lay prone, shuddering.

Only the assurance of Barcus that Judith had somehow escaped being precipitated over the edge of the shale roof roused him and gave him nerve enough to resume the climb.

It was true, when he found courage to look and see for himself, she lay within three yards of the brink, supine, her face upturned to the sun, nostrils—she dared not stir: a single movement was calculated to set the shale bed again in motion.

Faintly he realized that if, as Barcus asserted, she had deliberately cut the rope herself, Judith had offered up her life to spare his own.

IV.—RETRIBUTION.

And yet the very consciousness of the girl's danger was all the stimulant that Alan needed to recall him to himself.

Once arrived with Barcus at the top of the cliff, he lost no time in setting about preparations to effect her rescue.

In this business, Fortune smiled upon him, as it were, by predisposition.

A broad roadway ran along the top of the precipice, turning off, at a little distance to the right, to descend the mountainface. And just beyond this turning Providence had chosen to locate the camp of a hydraulic mining outfit.

Alan's appearance at the top, in fact, was coincident with the arrival at that point of half a dozen excited miners; and he had no more than thanked his demands than three of their number were hastening back to the camp to procure rope and more hands.

Within five minutes Alan, against the protests of Rose and Barcus, was being lowered over the edge and down to the shale roof, on which he landed at a spot far to one side of the camp to escape all danger of sending a second landslide down the cliff.

Picking his way carefully down to the very brink, Alan edged along this, more than once saved a fall to death only by the rope, until he stood immediately below Judith.

Then pausing, he instructed her carefully, tossed the end of the rope into her hands, and when she had wound it twice round her arm, crept up to her side and helped her make it fast about her body.

His signal to the miners that all was well elicited prompt response. There was a giddy interval in which the two swung perilously between heaven and earth. Then they stood once more in safety.

Supported by sympathetic hands, the quietist staggered into camp, their story, as condensed by Barcus and breathlessly confirmed by Alan, already winning them enthusiastic champions.

And this was very well for them. For they had no more than eased themselves and begun to appreciate what perils they had just escaped, when the rumble of a motor car wound round the shoulder of the hill.

Started by this alarm more men into full command of his sagging faculties, Alan rose and stumbled out into the roadway, taking quick cognizance of such facilities for defense as the camp afforded and issuing instructions with a voice vibrant with fear, not for his own safety, but for the safety of those whom he loved.

Not far from the point where the road swung from the cliff to thread the camp the hydraulic nozzle was in action, its terrific force of water melting the mountain-side away ton by ton.

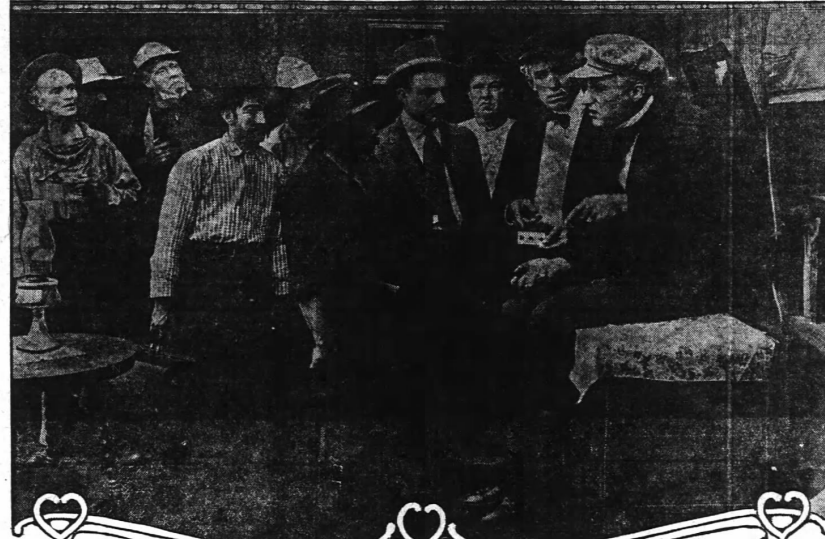

Toward this Barcus ran at top speed, gaining the man in charge of the nozzle just as the car swung round the bend.

Pausing only long enough to make certain that there could be no mistake—and having this certainty made doubly sure by Jimmy's action in rising from his seat and firing over the windmill pointblank at Alan as this last stood waiting in the roadway—Barcus and the miner swung the nozzle round until it bore directly on the car.

The power of its stream was such that the car was checked instantly in its tracks; and before the water could have been shut off or the stream diverted, the machine was driven back to the very lip of the cliff and over it completely, taking with it those two men whose efforts all the hopes of Seneca Trine of late had been centered.

A death that was merciful, in that it was instantaneous, awaited them at the foot of the cliff.

WOODWARD CORRECTS CANDLER'S STATEMENT

Declares Alderman Did Not Tell the Whole Story When Opposing Mayor's Veto.

Mayor James G. Woodward, in a statement issued Saturday in connection with his veto of the resolution increasing the salary of City Electrician R. C. Turner from $1,800 to $2,400 per annum, comes back strong at Alderman John S. Candler.

Alderman Candler took the floor in council last Monday to advocate the adoption of the resolution providing for the increase. He also led the fight in the aldermanic house. The aldermen sustained Mayor Woodward's veto by failing to concur in council's favorable action.

The mayor's statement follows: "I do not care to be drawn into any controversy with Judge Candler. I am sure that the motive of my former vote of the Turner salary was to bring about the correction at the session of the aldermanic board, should have told the whole story and not related a little part to suit his own convenience."

It is true with him, as well as myself, that at a meeting of the aldermen, held on the 11th inst., the position was taken according to the majority. What caused this discussion was an effort of mine to try to convince all the aldermen of the city under one heading, that the police alarm system, the fire alarm system and waterworks electric lighting, I was under the impression, as I had stated, that the aldermen were not to be paid considerable money by consolidating all the electrical affairs of the city under one heading.

Judge Candler took the position at that time that the position of that character was worth $2,400 per year, but he believed that Turner was the man for the job and I agreed with him there. In the order favoring the $2,400, provided the whole salary of Turner was $2,400 per year. This was the whole story.

LETTON AND SAPHIRE GO ON TRIAL AGAIN IN MUNICIPAL COURT

J. P. Letton, manager of the Winnett hotel, who engaged in a fight with his house officer, Harry Saphire, last Saturday night, will answer a charge of assault and battery in Judge Ridley's division of the municipal court Monday morning. Both Letton and Saphire appeared Friday in the recorder's court to answer a charge of disorderly conduct caused by this same encounter. Manager Letton was fined $7.50, while the case against the house officer was dismissed.

Over 100 Delegates Will Attend Belgian Immigration Meet

Fully 100 delegates are expected to attend the conference on Belgian immigration to Georgia, farm lands, to be held in Atlanta, Tuesday morning, at 10 o'clock, at the Westmont hotel.

The delegates will be composed of members of special committees appointed by many counties and cities throughout the state, to push the Belgian immigration question; representatives of the leading railroads, who are said to be backing the movement; delegates from chambers of commerce and other trade bodies; representatives from civic organizations, large landowners; real estate men and other interested parties from many points.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the wisdom of forming a permanent organization to bring good Belgian refugee farmers and their families, now in England, France and Holland, to Georgia, to settle the unoccupied farm lands of this section.

The local committee, headed by R. P. Rhoades, has been actively engaged for several weeks in preparing for the convention.

$20,000 FIRE AT ALBANY

Woolfolk Building Damaged and Tenants Flooded Out.

Albany, Ga., November 21.—(Special.) A large crowd watched the fire department fight a stubborn blaze from 11 till 12 o'clock in the three-story Woolfolk building, at the corner of Pine and Washington streets, which is upper story gutted by flames. The blaze started in a bedroom and after smoldering all night, burst through the roof. The National bank, the Postal Telegraph company, the Albany Exchange and a number of other tenants were flooded out and the upper story was left a mass of wreckage. The loss will approximate $20,000, but seems to be pretty well covered by insurance.

BOARD OF HEALTH TO GUARD AGAINST TYPHOID

The state board of health has inaugurated a system of bulletins, designed to educate the superintendents of public and private water supplies throughout the state on matters pertaining to the better supervision of their filtering plants. These bulletins will be sent out from time to time, each one dealing with various subjects.

Bulletins Nos. 1 and 2 were sent out Saturday to filtering plants all over the state. The work and preparation of the bulletins is being carried on under the supervision of Ray C. Werner, who has charge of the department of expert supervision and analytical control of water supplies. Mr. Werner is an expert consulting chemist and bacteriologist.

Bulletin No. 1 deals with the subject of "Typhoid, Fever—Its Origin, Prevalence and Transmission by Polluted Water." Bulletin No. 2 takes up "Typhoid Death Rates in Relation to Impure Water."

If sufficient money is appropriated for this excellent work during the coming year it will be extended in its scope.

FLIM-FLAM ARTIST WANTED BY POLICE

The police are looking for a young man alleged in a big bill in exchange for a dollar bill, which he had "raised" to the five-dollar denomination. Friday evening the Cox Prescription store, on Peachtree street, received a call from 22 Ellis street to send out the package of $5. As the messenger boy was approaching the designated address, a young man stepped to the curb and asked for the package and the change for the five-dollar bill. When the messenger boy turned to the drug store he discovered the clever game of which he had been the victim.

WHILE HUBBY FROLICKED WIFE LIVED ON BEANS

Mrs. Rhoda A. King, a sad and faded woman, has filed divorce proceedings against her husband, charging that he lived a gay and reckless life along the whiskey way while she was forced to subsist on beans. Besides that, she also charges with him and negligent. Coker is represented by Attorneys Coker & Jackson. The suit was filed Saturday morning.

THE CAMP NOVOZ

BY THEOPHORE ROOSEVELT

ON TO CAMPOS NOVOS

NEXT morning (February 6), we resumed our march. It soon began to rain and we were drenched, when, some fifteen miles on, we reached the river where we were to camp. After the great heat we felt quite cold in our wet clothes, and gladly crowded round a fire which was kindled under a thatched shed, beside the cabin of the ferryman.

The ferryboat was so small that it could only take one mule, or at most two, at a time. The mules, and a span of six oxen dragged by ox-carts which we had overtaken, were ferried slowly to the farther side that afternoon, as there was no food on the hilltop bank where we ourselves camped. The ferryman was a soldier in the employ of the Telegraphic Commission. His good-humored, pleasant manner was evidently of both Indian and negro blood, with him, and was doing all he could to be a housekeeper. In the comfortable little cabin, with its primitive harnesses of furniture and fittings.

Here we saw Captain Ansel, in a few minutes talk with the cool, competent officer who was doing his duty with such workmanlike efficiency. His little poncho, and was very busy in getting his horse forward to think of poor discomfort. He had good deal of trouble with his mules, but his oxen were still in fair shape.

After leaving the Jurenses the ground became somewhat more hilly, and the scrubby forest was less open, but otherwise it was not very different from the previous one, and yet to me rather attractive, landscape. The anti-hills and the hills in the distance were not very high, so to speak, were so conspicuous as ever. The architecture of some were red sand, of others black sand, and others which were of a brownish color. The largest had been built by the white men, and the others by the Indians, but not infrequently latter were a man's hand.

CAMP FIRE TALES.
That evening round the camp fire, Charlie, the black boy, told us some of the tales of his people. He said that he had killed by a Jaracana snake. Charlie told us a story of a Jaracana snake which he had killed by a Jaracana snake. He said that he had killed by a Jaracana snake.

Snakes frequently came into his camp after nightfall. He said that he had killed by a Jaracana snake. He said that he had killed by a Jaracana snake.

CAMP AT CAMPOS NOVOS.

he saw on the bank a small ananassa, some two feet long, killing one of the human fish, netive, trident, carnivorous lizard, equally at home on land and in the water. Evidently, the ananassa was digging for holes in the bank in which to lay their eggs; for there were several holes, and the ananassa was very busy in making them.

They were short of kitchen. Miller also told of the stone gods and altars and temples he had seen in the great Colombian forests, monuments of strange civilizations which flourished and died out ages ago, and of which all memory has vanished. He said that he had seen a large number of stone gods and altars, and that he had seen a large number of stone gods and altars.

The country when opened will be a healthy abode for white settlers. But pioneering in the wilderness is grim work for both man and beast. Continually we saw the dead bodies of the animals which had been killed by the Nambiquaras.

Dainty Accessories for the Dainty Woman

DAINTY lace frilled nosegay. Handkerchiefs with colored designs. Three dainty new collar arrangements. Ties of striped silk.

AMBER beads strung on gold wire. Amber and amethyst beads of different shape. The popular party case.

AN elaborate afternoon gown in olive green and black taffeta. The blouse of green is slashed at each side, front and back, to allow the black to peep through, and the lower half of the sleeves are of the black with deep cuffs of the green. The skirt has a deep circular yoke from which hang two very full flounces so long that only four tiny ruffles of black taffeta show below them on the underkirt. A quaintness is added by having collar, cuffs and double tunic all edged with black silk fringe, while the military touch has not been forgotten, for down the back, from collar to bottom of the skirt's yoke are straps of black braid, finished with a button at one side.
